Congress intended these soldiers have absolute control," says the New York Tribune, referring to the commanders of the military districts into which the South is divided by the military acts. On this point Chief Justice Chase does not agree with the Tribune. "By the first of these acts," he said in his opinion in the Mississippi case, expounding the duty of the President under the military acts, "he is required to assign generals to command in the several military districts, and to detail sufficient military force to enable such officers to discharge their duties under the law. PARIS, May 31, 1867. The fete given on Tuesday last by the Austrian Embassy to all the majesties and highnesses in Paris was, as every one expected it would be, the greatest event of this memorable season. The English Ambassador's ball of the preceding week was gorgeous in the extreme, and those who attended it thought it could not be surpassed, but Prince de Metternich's ensurpassed, but Prince de Metternich's entertainment has outdone everything. It has been compared to the historical ball given in 1810 to Napoleon I by Prince Schwarzenberg. The plan was the same, only since the above date decorators have invented so many different ways of making one hall look like two, by means of prisms, glasses, and other optic deceits, they are so incomparable at building up grottoes and cascades, that, if unlimited power in our days is given them, they convert a quiet house into the hanging gardens of Semiramis on the shortest notice. That an unlimited sum of money was alat an unlimited sum of money was al That an unlimited sum of money was allowed to all the draughtsmen, artists, gardeners; and decorators at the Austrian Embassy, by no less a power than the Austrian government, is evident from the royal preparations made.

The ball room was erected on the continuation of the ground floor, leading into the artificent graden lighted with elec-

In the back-ground rose a rock, from which, at a given anal started a cascade, and gradually presented the appearance of a volcano throwing forth torrents of lava—this was effected by electric rays in the distance. This splendid illumination made the lights in all the open halls look almost wan and pale. The chandeliers were immense bas-tets of flowers, round which branches kets of nowers, round which orancies held thousands of wax tapers.

The ball was opened by the Emperor with the Queen of the Belgians, the Prince of Prussia with the Empress. The King of the Belgians danced with the Princess Mathilde, and Prince Leuchtemburg with Mathilde, and Prince Leuchtemburg with Princess de Metternich.

After this official quadrille came John Strauss' waltz, and the scene was magnificent. All ranks were blended in one promiseuous whirl. The Sycamore (Ill.) Republican says who obscure the clear determination which they have already taken on behalf of the whole country. Party itself must promptly obey the larger and higher calls of a nation in distress. They will set an example of such true patriotism, magnanimity and lofty sentiment as must at length put the elements of a tyrannical and destructive radicalism to rout and to show.

The Sycamore (III.) Republican says:
"Considerable interest was excited last week by the mysterious disappearance of one George Wendenburg, living near Malta, who left his home on the Friday previous, and had not been seen since. He had ous, and had not been seen since. He had a very valuable team, and it was feared he had met foul play. On Tuesday, Sheriff Holcomb and a party of men started out in search of him. After several days' search he was discovered near Marengo as crazy as a doon, and naked except his shirt and pants. It seems he had suddenly gone crazy while on his way nome and turned north at Coltonville, and crossed the river. In crossing the stream his wagon box and its contents floated off, but he pushed on, nearly naked, and, by a roundabout course, reached Marengo, where he had been engaged for two or three days in drawing about stone to build a barn, as he said. His bare feet were bleeding and bruised, and, though cold and al-most naked, he seemed to be perfectly happy. He was thought to have acted a little queer while in this town, but his in sanity was hardly suspected."

prevailed. Such harmony of sentiment can be taken to mean only a united determination to organize in full force, and wrest both State and Nation from the control of Radicalism. The people have tasted the fruits of this new rule, and they find them bitter exceedingly. The Democracy of the Key Stone State act wisely in paying careful attention to their local organization, to see that it is firm and compact. That is of the first necessity, when such a battle is to be fought as is before the country. The memination of The Pacific Railroad is being laid with speed unexampled in the history of railroad construction, and only worthy of being compared to some of those famous pedestrian feats of a "hundred miles in a hundred hours." The work, to be sure, is not difficult of accomplishment, since the road-bed is for long reaches as level as a s a strong and sagacious act on the part of the Convention, calculated to draw to road-bed is for long reaches as floor, and grading becomes the easiest of matters. Still, there is scope enough for energy, and it has been expended. We are assured that they will bring a thoroughly drilled force into the field to measure the strength of radicalism matters. Still, there is scope enough for energy, and it has been expended. Ten days ago the main stem had been built to a distance of 361 miles west of Omaha; but where the jumping-off place now is can only be conjectured, since huge strides are taken in ten days. The telegraph then significantly told us that "General Augur's camp is at the end of the track fore their persistent and patriotic opposi-tion. ANCIENT PENS AND INK .- The stylus, or metallic pen, was never used for writing on papyrus or parchment. The unhappy modern who introduced this instrument of torture deserves to sit at his desk with nothing but steel pens during a wretched immortality. The age of calligraphy is gene, and the iron age has succeeded it. The ancient pen was made of the Egyptian reed, cut down to a point, split exactly like the quill, and thence called cloven footed. The ink most commonly used was black, and some of it—the Egyptian ink—was so excellent and durable, that letters, hieroglyphs, traced more than five-and-twenty centuries ago, have the freshness and gloss of yesterday. The inkstands, some of which have been found in Pompeii, were made much like our own, single for one kind of ink, or double for red and black, or round and hexagonal. One was discovered at Herculaneum, conthick, could still be used for writing. The inks of the ancients are thought to have resembled printer's ink, and not to have been so flowing as those now in use. The Roman artist, Persius, describes an author who attributed the sluggish current of his ideas to the thickness of his ink, a natural delusion, which every one in the habit of writing must have experienced. For our knowledge of the actual details in the preparation and material of Greek books, we have to depend on Egypt and the buried cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii.

Mr. Dawson, though a young man and an unpracticed speaker, yet presents the issues of the canvass with clearness and force, and, intrenching himself behind a borricade of facts, spexies with much effect, whilst Col. Wolford, with his enlarged experience, his great mind, his fervid eloquence, and his manly bearing, is a very host. Let no one fail to attend these appointments. All that is wanting is for the people to understand the true issues of the campaign.

Gen. Griffin and Gen. Reynolds, of Texas, reported to Gen. Sherman that Judge Rives, of the Ninth Judicial District of that State, in a charge to the grand trict of that State, in a charge to the grand jury of the court, stated that he should not receive the testimony of negroes, as the laws of Congress on the subject were unconstitutional, and he therefore defied different nations and tribes, speaking forty different languages, and, at the present rate of march, these figures will ere long be doubled. Says the correspondence to which we refer: "The advance of Russia towards Bokhara and Cabul is discussed with no little eagerness; they (the people) welcome the approach of Russia just as we know the mass of the people do in Central Asia." This is a strange admission, and shows how rapidly the power of England is declining upon the border of her great colonial strongholds. Already it appears that Russia is stirring up discord on the different nations and tribes, speaking not recognize the law or authority of Con-gress, and will be bound only to the sov-ereign State of Texas. Reports of a like character are coming in almost daily from and in no case to be sold or anemated by said band, per sixth article treaty of October fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, two thousand five hundred dollars.

India possessions, and this is done so well that in almost every case the people, if left to the choice of rulers, would prefer the Russian to the old crushing despotism which the East India Company inaugurated, and which succeeding rulers have continued in the country. The Russian Governors appear to assimilate with the people, attend their feasts and make them their equals, which, for the heterogeneous Russian nationality, is a simple matter, while to the aristocratic element which has heretofore controlled the Indies it is almost impossible.
